CHARLES HENRY BEFORE COUNCIL

President of I. & C. Gave Company's Views of Stopping Cars at Main Street Crossing.

ANNEXATION PETITION READ

Passed an Ordinance Forbidding the Burning of Leaves and Rubbish on Brick Street.

Charles L. Henry, president of the I. & C. traction company, appeared before the city council, which met in regular session last night in regard to the stopping of the company's cars as they approach the Main street crossing. Some time ago the council instructed the city clerk to notify the company to stop all cars before crossing Main street, and Mr. Henry stated that he desired to discuss the matter with the council.

"We consider ourselves a part of the city and want to do what is right on all questions," said Mr. Henry. "Now the crossing at Main street is different from any other in the city because there is more traffic and is in the center of the business district. One person should not take care of another's carelessness and that is what we are doing at this crossing. The traction company is always trying to avoid accidents and I think we have done so in this city. I think the plan of having the cars stop at the crossing is wrong--what we want is to run the cars slow enough to stop in time to avoid accidents."

Continuing Mr. Henry said, "When a car approaches a crossing slowly it makes the people stop, but when stopped before the crossing the people rush forward and do not think about starting again. It seems as though they have an insane desire to rush forward just as soon as the car is brought to a standstill. I have issued an order to all motormen that they shall approach this crossing at a rate so as to be able to stop their cars within ten feet. This, I believe, will be better than stopping the cars and will insure a reasonable amount of care. We will enforce the order and if the chief of police finds any motorman violating it I ask him to report the car number to the company and that motorman will not do it again, I assure you." The council looked favorably upon Mr. Henry's plan and decided to see how it would work.

The report of the city treasurer for the month of October was read and order referred to the finance committee. A report from the city engineer giving the assessment of each property owner in West Ninth street for the recently completed cement walks was ordered received and placed on file.

An ordinance forbidding the burning of leaves, rubbish and trash on the brick streets was read and passed. The ordinance makes it unlawful to burn anything upon the brick streets and is to protect the streets from damage that might arise. Upon conviction the guilty party may be fined any sum not exceeding $11.

The city clerk read a petition from Theodore Abercrombie asking that the land known as Abercrombie's second addition to Rushville be admitted into the city. A plat of the land accompanied the petition. The land extends north from Eleventh street to the first alley above Twelfth street, thence west to the east side of Morgan street, thence south to Eleventh street. Councilman Parsons moved that the plat be approved by the council, which carried. An ordinance annexing the territory will be drafted and presented to the council at the next meeting.

The council bills were allowed as read and $1,200 was ordered transferred from the general fund to the water and light fund to meet the current expenses. Among the bills was one from Watt Bartlett for hauling off seven dogs, six cats and one hog. The city clerk was instructed to issue an order for $300 to pay the interest on bonds which is due November 15.

The council then went into session as a committee of the whole. It is understood that the claim of Alvan Moor for services while treasurer which has been before the council for several months was the cause of the committee meeting.

PLEADED GUILTY TO BOTH CHARGES

Eugene Stanley Paid Fines and Costs Amounting to $27.35 in Squire's Court.

SAID HE HAD BEEN PROVOKED

Chief McAllister returned late yesterday afternoon from Knightstown with Eugene Stanley, who was arrested on two charges, assault and battery and disturbing a meeting. Stanley was taken before Squire Kratzer and pleaded guilty to both charges. He was fined five dollars and costs for assault and battery, amounting to $17.60 and one dollar and costs for disturbing the meeting. Both fines were paid.

McAllister had no trouble getting Stanley as he quit work and came to Knightstown, where he met Mr. McAllister. Stanley was working near Middletown for Watts and Motts, a Knightstown well drilling firm. Mr. Motts accompanied him to this city and paid both the fines. He thinks well of Stanley and said he must have been provoked or he would not have hit the minister as he did. The affair occurred at a social given in the Raleigh town hall and the affidavits were filed by James L. Hayes and Ed Aikens.

CLERKS KNOW CITY DIRECTORY

Postoffice Employees Are Better Posted on That Topic Than Any Person in Rushville.

DECIPHER STRANGE ADDRESSES

Postoffice clerks are called upon to decipher very difficult names and addresses often. One who is not familiar with the work of a clerk does not realize how difficult their work is. Almost every day they are called upon to translate the names of some patron of the local office which is written in a peculiar handwriting or sometimes in a foreign language. If the clerks are not familiar with the foreign language used in addressing some mail received here they can generally get it translated. Quite a bit of foreign mail is received here, but it is seldom that any trouble is experienced.

There is probably no one in the city who is more familiar with the directory of the city than are the mail clerks. They have occasion to know where most every one in the city lives and they are better posted on this topic than a person who knows the directory by heart.

TO REBUILD MILL.

New Castle Times: The Times correspondent is authorized to say that the Stone Quarry mills, which was burned one week ago last night will be at least partially rebuilt at Spiceland. This pleasing information was given direct by Mr. Hodson on Tuesday.

NICK TOMPKINS WAS DEFEATED

Former Rush County Farmer Lost in Race For Sheriff in New Mexico by 500.

RAN 1000 AHEAD OF THE TICKET

Remarkable Showing Which he, Almost a Stranger, Made is Considered Remarkable.

According to word received here late this afternoon Nick Tompkins, son of J. W. Tompkins, and until recently a well known Rush county farmer, was defeated for sheriff of Chaves county, New Mexico yesterday by five hundred votes. It has been predicted that he would not be elected, but that he would cut down the overwhelming Democratic majority in the county.

Nick ran ahead of the Republican ticket by one thousand votes. This indicates that the Democrats in the county carried the election by even a greater majority than it was expected. There are twenty-four hundred voters in the county. It was forecasted that the Democrats would carry the county by eight hundred votes which would be two to every one Republican vote. But they did even more than that.

The showing which Nick Tompkins made is considered marvelous. The fact that he was almost a stranger in the county, having not lived there a year, and should run fifteen hundred ahead of his own ticket, is a great record. The returns are incomplete yet as the county is one-third as large as Indiana and the methods for obtaining returns very poor.

While the political game was more or less new to Nick Tompkins, he became a veteran campaigner in the month between his nomination and the election. It is safe to say that there was no man on either ticket who made more friends and extended his acquaintance farther than did Tompkins.

He knows no stranger now in all Chaves county. He is everybody's friend and what is more important, everybody is his friend. It is common to hear the expression: "That man Tompkins ought to have been down here long ago." He is just the kind of man who fits in the schemes in the Roswell country--a man who goes in heart and soul for anything he starts.

Mr. Tompkins called on his Democratic opponent who is at present a deputy sheriff. The meeting took place in the sheriff's office.

"Tompkins is my name. I just came over to get acquainted and find out how to act when I take my office," said Tompkins in his good natured way. He got a laugh all right.

"So you're going to beat me are you?" asked the deputy sheriff.

"I certainly am if my right hand doesn't give out."

"Well, let's be friendly and trade votes on election day," suggested the Democratic candidate.

"Now I want to be friendly all right, but I don't want to trade votes. I'm afraid you might get stage fright on election day. No, I think I'll vote for the man I am best acquainted with." And they parted the best of friends.

And so Tompkins has been making friends all during the campaign in the good old fashioned Rush county Republican way. With the other Republican candidates he took a trip over the plains, through the ranch section of the country. At one place the bunch went to a house just at meal time. The woman had no help and Tompkins went to the kitchen, fried the chicken, made the gravy and a few other things like that.

POLITICS PLAYS VERY SMALL PART

Town Elections in This and Other Counties in the District Are Tame Affairs.

CANDIDATES GET SMALL VOTE

No Opposition at Glenwood or Carthage--Great Interest in Henry County.

As was predicted before the polls closed in Carthage and Glenwood yesterday, the municipal elections were very tame. There was no opposition to any one candidate in either place, which are the only incorporated towns in Rush county.

In Carthage the town board will be Republican for the next term as a Republican was elected to succeed a Democrat, the board having been Democratic during the last term. The town marshal and the clerk and the treasurer are Republicans. At Glenwood the People's ticket was the only one in the field.

Elections were held in all of the incorporated towns in adjoining counties. The greatest interest was evinced in Henry county where there are fourteen incorporated towns. Politics had no place in any of the elections in these towns as was the case in nearly every town in Indiana.

There were few issues except to get business men to conduct the various towns. Middletown and Knightstown, were the only ones where the old political parties had tickets in the fields and at these places the voting was mixed. In other towns of the county, Citizens' and Independent tickets were the only ones and the voting was formal.

Republicans elected every town officer in Westport in Decatur county yesterday, except one member of the board of trustees, Dr. J. C. Hill, who received a majority of forty over his opponent. At Newport the Democrats had the only ticket in the field and there was no contest.

The Democrats were successful in East Connersville, electing a Democratic council, treasurer and clerk. The Republicans elected a marshal. This was the only election held in Fayette county.

The Republicans at Morristown, the only incorporated town in Shelby county, elected their ticket by a two-to-one majority over the Democrats in the election yesterday. The total vote cast was 132, but the town polls 188. The officers elected were: Clerk, Homer Havens; treasurer, Lewis Carr; trustee, E. W. Johnson; marshal, Grant Wicker.

The following ticket elected at Liberty, Union county is Republican in its entirety: Monroe Duvall, clerk; Louis Ammerman, treasurer; James Bright, marshal; town trustee, John Metzger, Monroe Clark, Cress Beard, Parker Crist.

In only one instance did the elections in Wayne county turn on political lines and that was in Hagerstown, where the Democrats won four out of five offices. In Milton there were two tickets, the Citizens' and Independent.

The Citizens' ticket elected two trustees. In East Germantown the only contest was over marshal, Warfel and Tont each receiving 28 votes. The following elections were made at Cambridge City, with no attention being paid to politics: Trustees, fourth ward, W. E. Anstil; fifth ward, E. D. Filby; clerk, F. W. Dirk; treasurer, R. H. Ressler; Marshal, Dan Driscoll. At Dublin, John M. Champe, a Prohibition candidate, was elected treasurer and clerk. The others elected were Republicans.

The Socialists elected a full ticket at Shirley, the only incorporated town in Hancock county. The town was formerly Democratic.

GETS MERITED PROMOTION

Mert Wolcott Given Better Territory as Salesman and is Praised.

F. E. Wolcott has received word that his son, Mert Wolcott, has received a merited promotion from the firm for which he is traveling in the West. Mr. Wolcott has been selling paint for a well known firm and has been transferred from the Los Angeles Cal., office to one in San Francisco, with a much better territory to cover. The firm addressed a letter to its other salesmen warning them to be on the alert and pointed out the record of Mert Wolcott.

NEW WELL PROVES TO BE GOOD ONE

Test Shows an Average of One Hundred Gallons Per Minute and Has Steady Stream.

WATER IS OF GOOD QUALITY

The new water well in the rear of the Worth garage in East Second street was tested today and as was predicted when the well was finished, turned out to be a good one. The air compressor was started this morning at 8:30 o'clock and a steady stream of water flowed all day. The well averaged about one hundred gallons per minute. "It is one of the best wells the city has," said Supt. Mahin "and will prove a valuable addition to the city's water supply."

The water is not clear, but it was expected to clear on continued pumping. The test will be made for twenty-four hours. The water is of good quality and has been analyzed by the State chemist. By pumping all day the water in the well south of this one went down about eight feet, but it is said the water in other wells in the neighborhood was not lessened.

CANCER IS FATAL TO JACOB RUBY

Pioneer of Rush County Expires at His Home Near Carthage at Age of Eighty-Two Years.

THE FATHER OF JESSE RUBY

Jacob Ruby, age eighty-two years, died at his home a short distance east of Carthage this morning at five o'clock of cancer of the stomach. He had been a patient sufferer for some time and little hope had been held out for his recovery.

Mr. Ruby had been residing on the farm on which he died for a number of years. He was born December 21, 1829, and had spent all of his life in Rush county. His son, Ed, was residing on the farm, where Mr. Ruby died.

Mr. Ruby was the father of Jesse Ruby, the well known ball player, who played here a number of times. He played in Purdue University and was once a member of a team in a western league. Jesse Ruby was married only recently and his bride's mother died a few days after the wedding.

Besides the two sons mentioned Mr. Ruby is survived by another son, Alvan, of near Carthage, and five daughters as follows: Mrs. Ella Reeves of Carthage, Mrs. Francis Wolfe of Centerville, Mrs. Martha Ewing of Knightstown, Mrs. Emma Beemer and Mrs. Orma Hopkins, both of California. The funeral services will be held at the residence Saturday morning at ten o'clock and will be conducted by the Rev. B. N. Wilson of the Carthage Methodist church.

RUDOLPH WILL PAY ALL BILLS

Shopman of Richmond Writes That Editor of Palladium is Real Sponsor of LaFollette Meeting.

COULD NOT FORCE COMMITTEE

He Says Palladium Force and Few Socialists Comprised "Mass Meeting" to Make Plans.

A Richmond man who signs himself "Shopman" has written the New Castle Courier to explain the condition in Richmond, where Rudolph G. Leeds, editor of the Palladium, attempted to force LaFollette, the insurgent senator from Wisconsin, on the Republican central committee of Wayne county. The Richmond man throws some light on the real conditions in that alleged insurgent stronghold. The editorial in question was reproduced in the Daily Republican Monday. The letter is as follows:

I have just read the editorial copied from your paper in the Richmond Palladium and the comments upon that article by the logical and consistent editor of that Socialistic organ.

Your editorial was well stated and sets forth the exact facts as to the amount of noise that has gone forth from this county in an effort on the part of the Palladium to dictate the policy of the Republican party in Wayne county.

The editor of the Palladium tried to force LaFollette on the local central committee, offering to pay all the expenses and in every way trying to frighten them into doing his bidding or take the results of his wrath in his paper, the club by which he tries to force his juvenile ideas into the people of the county.

After the committee turned him down as they were advised to do by every one with whom they counseled, he threatened them that he would have this matter handled by the shopmen, whom he could influence by his money, and got their consent to use their names as a committee over which to call for the "mass meeting" that he mentioned in his comment. At this "mass meeting" there were himself and some of the Palladium employees, two or three Socialists and a few others who did not understand the call. He agreed to pay all the bills, hire the band, decorate the hall, etc., if they would agree to attend the LaFollette meeting, and it is presumed that they partially agreed to do this.

They chose a rank Socialist for chairman and another equally strong Socialist for secretary and a boy for treasurer to handle the money that the editor will furnish and he has plenty, inherited from his father who made it off of these same shopmen that the editor so frequently defends.

This great editorial philanthropist has forgotten that just a short time ago he endeavored to form a milk trust here in Richmond and bought up all of the dairies that he could get control of and then raised the price of milk from 5 to 10 cents so that these same poor deluded (?) shopmen could raise their babies on higher priced milk, but he could not fool them that time either for they just quit using the milk and his company went into a receiver's hands.

Don't you be misled by the effervescence of that editor for he can not long scare the people of this county with his threats to lambast them in his paper. This county is Republican.

THE WEATHER

Rain tonight and Thursday.

ELECTION DAY HAD SURPRISES

There Were Several Political Reversals.

KENTUCKY NOTABLE EXAMPLE

McCreary, Democrat, Carries the State For Governor by One of the Biggest Majorities Ever Given in the Blue Grass State—Cox Gang Loses Cincinnati, Dix Gets a Rebuke and Maryland Goes Republican.

New York, Nov. 8.—Tuesday's battle of the ballots brought out several significant features. In this state Governor Dix has been rebuked by a complete reversal of the general assembly. A year ago the New York state assembly stood 87 Democrats to 63 Republicans. As a result of Tuesday's elections the assembly this year will stand, Republican, 102; Democrats, 47; Socialist, 1. In New York city the fight between Tammany and the Republican-Hearst fusionists was renewed, Tammany again coming out on top, the highest plurality for any of its judicial candidates being about 8,000. In Brooklyn, however, the fusion county ticket was victorious.

Kentucky also gave a reversal, the Democrats there again coming into their own, giving former Senator James B. McCreary, the Democratic nominee for governor, a majority of about 25,000, the largest that any candidate for governor has received in that state for many years. Both branches of the legislature will be Democratic, thus insuring Congressman Ollie James' election to the United States senate.

New Mexico at its first state election polled the heaviest vote it ever cast. Many scratched tickets made the counting slow. The Democratic central committee claims the state for McDonald by 4,500 and the election of McDonald seems assured.

The most strenuous efforts of the Republicans of Massachusetts to pry Eugene N. Foss out of the governor's chair failed. He was re-elected by a majority of about 6,000 over Louis A. Frothingham, lieutenant governor. Foss carried his state ticket with him.

Governor Pothier was re-elected governor of Rhode Island without difficulty, the rest of the ticket going along with him.

The situation in the state of New Jersey seems to be one of battledore and shuttlecock. The returns change as often as the wires will carry them. The latest returns available indicate that the Republicans retain control of the senate by a majority of one, and regain the house, which was Democratic last year, which would give Governor Wilson an opposition assembly to work with.

For the second time in over thirty years Maryland elected a Republican state ticket, Phillips Lee Goldsborough defeating Arthur P. Gorman by a majority of 3,000 or more. The Republican state chairman claims the state by 8,000 and over.

There were several interesting mayoralty contests. Henry T. Hunt, the young Democratic prosecutor who futilely prosecuted Boss Cox on the charge of perjury, was elected mayor of Cincinnati by a decisive majority over Mayor Schwab. Cox organization candidate for re-election. Hunt carried the entire Democratic city ticket with him.

Rudolph Blankenburg, independent Republican and Democrat, was elected mayor of Philadelphia by about 10,000 over George H. Earle, organization Republican candidate.

For the fourth time Brand Whitlock was elected mayor of Toledo, while Newton D. Baker, styled the political heir of Tom L. Johnson, four-time mayor of Cleveland, was elected mayor of that city by a plurality of about 20,000.

Schenectady, N. Y., elected a Socialist for mayor, who carried the entire ticket with him. The voters of San Francisco practically completed the destruction of the labor machine when they elected a board of supervisors almost solidly anti-union.

In Pittsburg all the Republican candidate for county offices swept everything before them, the average majorities in the county running close to 20,000.

At Columbus, O., G. J. Karb, Democrat, defeated Mayor George S. Marshall, reform Republican, for re-election by a plurality of 6,000 on a total vote of 43,000. Marshall lost thousands as a result of his attitude during the streetcar strike a year ago.

The legislative election in Virginia produced no material change in the complexion of the general assembly. At least 85 out of the 100 members of the house of delegates are Democrats. The election passed off quietly in Mississippi, a small vote being polled because of lack of interest and for the reason that it was raining all day.

In the Cook county (Chicago) judicial elections the parties divided evenly, the ten superior court judgeships, and the Democrats elected one circuit judge. A higher-pay-for-judges proposition was defeated.

From indications the election in Nebraska was a Republican victory, although the only congressional district to hold an election went Democratic by a large majority. Three members of the supreme court elected were all Republicans.

JAMES B. M'C'REARY

Former Senator Elected Governor of Kentucky.

MARVELOUS WORK OF A SKILLFUL FORGER

He Painted Pictures of Checks That Defied Detection.

New York, Nov. 8.—Three men rounded up here by detectives are declared by Commissioner Dougherty to be the brains of a gang of forgers that has been operating since 1905, and whose profits, taken from all of the larger cities of the country, aggregate between $500,000 and $600,000. No more important arrest has been made of criminals in the forging line in the last fifteen years, the deputy commissioner said.

One of the most remarkable features of the unusually daring operations of the gang whose ringleaders were caught is that they actually passed painted pictures of checks, done with a camel's-hair brush from lettering to figures, the whole check created by an artist on white paper. None of the checks were lithographed, all being done by hand, and all defied detection.

The three men arrested were William I. Schultzbarger, who was found in his small cigar store in Brooklyn; Isador Weiss, who said he conducted a millinery establishment, and Charles E. Carless, the owner of a saloon. The latter man, who is a Sicilian of striking appearance and an easy-going address, is the one, so the detectives say, who engineered the whole scheme of forgery since its inception six years ago.

BLOWN TO FRAGMENTS

Driver of a Nitroglycerin Wagon Drops Can of the Explosive.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 8.—S. A. Green, aged 55 years, a driver of a nitroglycerin wagon for the Marietta Torpedo company, was blown to death, two horses were killed, a nitroglycerin factory blown into fragments and a wagon disappeared when an explosion of 1,200 quarts of nitroglycerin occurred at the factory at Rinehart.

Green was loading his wagon with nitroglycerin when he dropped one of the cans, causing the explosion. Only the smallest fragments of the man's body were found.

Indiana Town Elections.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—Elections were held in many incorporated towns in Indiana Tuesday for minor offices. In the majority the issues were purely local and in others, while partisan tickets were in the field, the results showed more of friendship for the candidates than of party principles. In some localities there were sharp contests.

Killed by His Own Gun.

Kewanee, Ill., Nov. 8.—Marcus Van Hie, aged thirty-two, while hunting ten miles north of here, was killed by the discharge of his gun, which he was pulling through a hedge fence.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Dr. Alfred C. Lambdin, editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger for the last twelve years, is dead, aged sixty-five.

In an engagement near Tobruk the Italians lost 200 killed and many wounded. The Turks lost ninety killed and fifty wounded.

The Nobel prize for chemistry has been awarded to Mme. Curie, who jointly with her late husband, received the Nobel prize in 1903, shortly after they had discovered radium.

Mrs. James Havemeyer, a daughter-in-law of William Frederick Havemeyer, three times mayor of New York, fell from the window of her apartment and was instantly killed.

A mob of 400 persons took Judge Moseley, a negro, away from deputy sheriffs at Lockhart, Miss., and lynched him. Moseley's crime was an assault on a white citizen with a stick.

A faunal expedition rivaling that of Colonel Roosevelt's in size and importance has started for Abyssinia, headed by Childs Frick, son of Henry C. Frick, to obtain birds and small mammals for the Smithsonian institute.

PEKIN NOW IN A STATE OF SIEGE

Revolutionary Army Encamped In Sight of Walls.

IMPERIAL FAMILY'S FLIGHT

All is in Readiness For the Exodus of the Ruling Clan the Moment Fighting Without the Walls Begins—All Indications Point to the Near Downfall of the Manchu Dynasty—Revolution Carries All Before It.

Pekin, Nov. 8.—With the murder of General Wu, which has violently embittered the Lanchow army, reformers generally and the anti-Manchu party, the crisis has become more materially acute, for Wu, although not an aggressive reformer, was regarded as among the strongest sympathizers with the revolution. The Lanchow army is convinced that the assassination was engineered by the imperial clan. The anger is heightened by rumors of a Manchu plot to murder assemblymen.

It now looks as if the throne's humiliation will avail nothing to save the imperial family and the dynasty from overthrow.

The city is full of alarming rumors and anxiety is general. The enraged Chinese troops in the Pekin district are reported to have repudiated their allegiance to the throne which the imperial concessions secured, and are marching toward the capital. The vanguard of the Twentieth division is reported to have reached the Fangtai junction, six miles outside the city, and to have stopped their trains and encamped, awaiting reinforcements. The railway in the direction of Hankow has been cut.

The exodus of the wealthy to the northward continues. There is a steady procession of carts on the roads. The railway to Kalgama, which alone remains in the control of the Manchu troops, is crowded with refugees. There is much confusion at the palace and there are reports that the court is preparing to flee, yet they have not left. The first appearance of Chinese troops at the city gates is expected to lead to fighting. The Manchu imperial guards seem in dangerous mood.

SEEKING STATE AID

Kentucky's Fight Against the White Plague to Be Pushed.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 8.—At a meeting of the legislative committee of the State Tuberculosis association it was decided that the legislature at its coming session will be asked to create a state sanatorium, to pass an enabling act for one or more counties to form themselves into a district for the erection and maintenance of tuberculosis sanatoriums; state aid to local sanatoria, supported by county taxation or by private funds, and an appropriation to the state association for educational work. The state board of health and State Medical society will be asked for their indorsement and support.

Not Dauried by Former Failure.

New York, Nov. 8.—A license has been issued to Romeo Miglietta and Mrs. Mary Whedon Gates, who recently obtained a divorce from Charles G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates. Mr. Miglietta gave his age as thirty-two years and Italy as his home. He is a brother of Adrian C. Miglietta, secretary of the Texas company, and is himself connected with that company.

More Hazing at Annapolis.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8.—Among a number of instances of physical hazing unofficially though reliably reported from the naval academy recently, was one which is understood to have ended in an upper class member being badly beaten by an athletic member of the fourth class, whose roommate, a small midshipman, had been hazed to the point of exhaustion by the senior.

Unsuccessful Quest of Health.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8.—Dietrich Meschendorf, one of Kentucky's foremost distillers, succumbed to heart disease at San Antonio, Tex. He left Kentucky just a week before in quest of health. He held a large block in the Sunny Brook Distilling company, which corporation he helped organize, as well as the Old Kentucky Distillery company.

Couldn't Endure Losses.

Rock Island, Ill., Nov. 8.—Despondent on account of recent financial losses which resulted from an extensive deal in land, Dr. W. B. Martin, a prominent physician of Sherrard, a small town near here, ended his life by cutting his throat with a razor.

Wild Geese Forced to Earth.

Beardstown, Ill., Nov. 8.—An extraordinary flight of wild geese, estimated to be several thousand of flocks, swarmed over and settled down on Beardstown when a heavy rain forced them to the earth. Thousands of them alighted near the city limits.

Taft Again on His Way.

Cincinnati, Nov. 8.—President Taft resumed his journeying today, visiting Frankfort and other places in Kentucky.

Ostracism for Shiftless, Is Plea of Magazine Writer

A prominent magazine writer in an article in a current publication advocates a new doctrine that might be tried out on Rushville with beneficial results. The doctrine, in short, is that of ostracism for undesirable citizens. The writer would have the people vote every four years on the question of whether or not any certain man are undesirable in the community and in the event the majority vote that the candidates are a menace to the neighborhood they are ostracised for a period of four years. If they have made good and reformed their habits and ways of living in that time they may come into the fold again at the expiration of the four-year limit. If their ways have not changed and the people vote to ostracise them again, they remain in outer darkness for four years more.

The author takes the view that there are a number of men in every community worthless to themselves, their families and the community in general. These men are simply worthless. They do not commit any grave crimes and so can not be sent to prison or reformatory. They are shiftless, loafers and vagabonds. These men seem to think the world owes them a living and they are too lazy to collect it. Consequently they rely on their wives or the public in general to support them. Ostracism would be the very thing for these men, the author thinks.

At the same time the writer does not believe the law providing ostracism for undesirable should apply to the poor and shiftless alone. He would have it in a broad sense inclusive of every man, no matter what his station in life might be. For instance a man in the community might grow rich and arrogant. He might oppress the poor and squeeze the last penny from them to enrich himself. He might conspire to control markets whereby he could regulate the prices of necessities of life and thus keep the price at a figure prohibitive to many people, but vastly profitable to him. Such a man could be ostracised and during the period of his ostracism a committee or an administrator would look after his property, administering the business according to justice and equity and for the good of the whole people rather than of the few.

Such a law as is proposed will hardly be written on the statute books during the present generation, but it may come some time. Suppose, for the pleasure of supposing that such a law was in force now and that an election was set for a date not far in the future.

For the purpose of supposition it will be said that a man in Rushville who does not work, who sleeps wherever he can find a place to curl up at night, who begs nickels and dimes on the plea that he is hungry and then spends the money for booze, has been singled out as a candidate for ostracism. A mass meeting of the voters is held and he is nominated. The question is, shall Mr. So and So be ostracised for a period of four years.

The campaign comes on in the course of time and like a "wet" and "dry" election the question confronting the electors are "yes" and "no." If the voters favor the ostracism of the man for four years, they vote "yes;" if opposed they vote "no." The campaign is hotly fought. The candidate for the degrees of ostracism wakes up to the seriousness of the situation and enlists the services of his friends. They take pity on him and go to work. They tell the voters all, and that they ought to give him another chance. The man in question gets some clean clothes, has the stubby growth of whiskers shaved off his face and makes a pretense of looking for work. He makes promises in profusion. He declares that if given a chance he will be one of the most industrious laboring men in the city. The campaign gains fever heat and everybody is talking about the question at issue.

At length the day of election comes and partisans are at the polls early. The man who is the subject of all the excitement hurries here and there begging for his chance and asking the people to vote "no." The day passes and the polls close. People crowd the streets at night to hear the returns. The first ward comes in with a scant majority in favor of the man being ostracised. He had a host of friends there and they worked hard for him. The second ward reports an overwhelming majority in favor of ostracism. The other ward comes in with the same story. Bill, we might call him, is doomed and there is no appeal. A week is given

Stomach Dosing, Sprays and Douches Have All Failed.

There is only one way to cure catarrh.

Reach the raw, tender, inflamed membrane that is infested with catarrh germs, and destroy the germs.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND

FOR ALL COUGHS AND COLDS

FOR CHILDREN AND GROWN PERSONS

Most effective with Croup and Whooping Cough

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR COMPOUND is quick and reliable. It stops the cough by promptly healing the cause. Contains no opiates. Is indispensable in a family where there are children.

ST. JOSEPH, MICH.

Mrs. Frank Marti, 417 Church St., says: "Foley's Honey and Tar Compound saved the life of our baby boy. He contracted a severe bronchial trouble and coughed violently and had spells of coughing and gagging and turned black in the face. I always had great faith in Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and started giving it to the child. In a short time he was relieved and finally the cough was entirely stopped and the coughing and gagging spells ceased both of them. He got well in a short time, gaining in weight and getting robust. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has many times saved us trouble and this with the wonderful cure in baby's case shows its great merit. We are never without Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. We always keep it in the house."

him to wind up his affairs here and then the proper officer takes him to the federal station, where all ostracised people are kept. He is made to learn a trade and to keep at work. His wants are carefully looked after, he is given proper food and clothing, but he does not get a chance to be shiftless. There he lives amid new surroundings for four years. He is not in prison and is not a criminal. He is just ostracised from his own community for four years. The time passes and Bill comes home. He is a man now, the believer in the system would have one think, and is ready to take his proper place in the community and hereafter be a good and useful citizen.

Naturally the election could be supposed to be much more interesting had Rushville people nominated more candidates. They might have ostracised a rich man or two and during his enforced absence his affairs would have been administered justly for him and so that his profits would continue, but at the same time his chance to squeeze the extra penny would be gone and the people would benefit thereby.

As Mr. Dooley might say, "Mister Hinney, 'ave ye bin affter readin' about the new doctrines of ostracism?"

"I hev not," replies Hinney, "What is it?"

"'Tis a great war-ruld," says Dooley, after he had explained the doctrine of the proposed law, and he adds: "It's wonderful now days what we rade in th' papers."

And indeed it is.

GOUT

Like Rheumatism, Once in the System, Can be Expelled by the Prompt Use of Sulphur in Solution.

Not the old fashioned disgusting doses of a thick mixture of molasses and powdered sulphur, for the system cannot assimilate sulphur in that form. There's a better way—SULFOSOL, the new form of sulphur in solution—the form anxiously desired for hundreds of years by the medical profession and now first realized in SULFOSOL.

SULFOSOL is as soluble as sugar or salt, and it has brought so much joy and gladness to sufferers from Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema and stubborn skin troubles that the whole world should know of this wonderful remedy.

SULFOSOL is the great vitalizer of the blood, expeller of uric acid and other blood taints and conqueror of Gout and Rheumatism. Get it at your nearest druggist or write to the Sulfosol Company, 72 Trinity Place, New York, for a free look on Gout, Rheumatism and Blood Diseases and the successful use of SULFOSOL in their treatment.

Gives Death Statistics For the Last Ten Years

For the first time since its organization, the state board of health is able to present a table of death statistics for Indiana for a period of ten years, with averages for the various contagious diseases with which the board has been dealing since it took up the problem of disease prevention. Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the board, says the tables are the most valuable the board has collected. He says a survey of a decade gives the public health officials a sufficient grasp on conditions to enable him to see whether he is making progress.

Dr. Hurty says the figures show a marked advance in the work of the board. The ravages by various diseases have been decreased in some instances, and in others they have been prevented from increasing. The rates of deaths for various diseases have been decreased in some instances and in virtually all instances have been kept from increasing. Dr. Hurty contends that the board's ability to prevent an increase in the rate, with the increase in population in the cities, and the consequence congestion of population, and the pollution of streams is a sign of successful operation.

Tuberculosis caused a greater number of death than any other disease during the ten-year period covered by the table, which is from 1901 to 1910, both inclusive. More than 45,000 persons died from this disease in that time. Diarrheal diseases came next, with a total of more than 17,000. The long dreaded disease, smallpox, killed fewer than five hundred persons.

The average death rate for the entire state for the ten years was 13.6 to each 100,000 population. The rate for cities of five thousand population or more, was 15.3, and the rural rate, 12.9. The annual state rates for the period were as follows: For 1901, 14.5; 1902, 13.5; 1903, 13.4; 1904, 14; 1905, 13.7; 1906, 13.5; 1907, 13.4; 1908, 13.2; 1909, 13.3; 1910, 13.5. During the period, 360,016 deaths were reported to the state board. The month of March claimed the greatest number of victims on an average for the ten years, the average for that month being 3,599. The lowest average was for June, when the average was 2,747.

The statistics of the board by diseases for the ten years show the following:

Pulmonary Tuberculosis—The total number of deaths from this disease for the period was 38,523, or an average of 3,953 a year. The greatest number died in 1901, when the total was 4,436. The average for the ten years, by months, showed the greatest number of deaths to have occurred in March and April, which is accounted for by the state board by the fact that the patients come through the severe winter months without sufficient vitality to survive until warm weather. The smallest average was in August. From 1901 to 1910 there was a steady decrease in the number of deaths until 1904, when there was an increase, after which there set in another decrease which continued until 1910, when there was a slight increase over 1909. Deaths from this disease by ages showed the greatest number in the age period of from twenty to twenty-five years, when the average for the ten years was 620. The average for children under one year was sixty-two, which decreased to fifteen in the three to four years period. Then it dropped to nine, then to six, and then mounted upward during the school years. From the age of twenty-five the average steadily decreased, until the average ran down to two for the age of ninety years or over. From the age of fifty to seventy the decrease was slower than for the remainder of the period after the twenty-fifth year.

Tuberculosis in All Forms—The total number of deaths from all forms of tuberculosis was 45,836, or an average of 4,533 a year. As in the case of pulmonary tuberculosis, the highest average for a month was in March and April. The highest average by ages was in the same age period as in pulmonary tuberculosis.

The number of mothers of eighteen to forty years who died of tuberculosis from 1904 to 1910, the period covered for statistics of this nature, was 7,170, or an average of 1,024 a year. The number of fathers of the same age who died during the period was 3,825, or an average of 548. The total number of orphans caused by tuberculosis in the seven years was 17,363.

Cancer—The statistics for cancer, which cover only 1908, 1909 and 1910, the board contends, justify its assertion that cancer is growing to be one of the most dangerous of the contagious diseases in the state. A total of 5,439 deaths were caused by the disease in that time, or an average of 2,813 a year. In 1908 there were reported 1,739 deaths; in 1909, there were 1,828 deaths; in 1910, there were 1,872 deaths.

Violence—From 1906 to 1910, deaths from violence numbered 8,760. Accidents caused 4,953 deaths; suicide, 1,174; homicides, 352.

Typhoid Fever—Typhoid fever caused 9,899 deaths in the ten years, or an average of 990 a year. The months of September, October and November had the highest averages, with February the lowest, the average being for the ten-year period. The total deaths by years showed almost a constant decrease from the beginning of the period, although 1910 showed considerable increase over 1909. By ages, the greatest number of deaths was of persons of from fifteen to nineteen years, with the age of twenty to thirty following closely. The highest average by ages was 141 a year.

Diphtheria — Diphtheria caused 3,900 deaths in the ten years, with October, November, December and January, early school months, having the highest averages. The greatest number of deaths was of children from five to nine years old. After the fortieth year, no averages were reported.

Scarlet Fever—Scarlet fever caused 1,430 deaths, with the highest monthly average in January and February. The highest average by ages was for the same age period as that of diphtheria. No averages were reported for the period after the fortieth year.

Diarrheal Disease (under two years)—This class of disease killed 17,320 babies, with the highest averages for July, August, September and October, known as microbe months.

Diarrheal Disease (over two years)—Total deaths, 6820; averages as above.

The statistics of deaths from diarrheal disease by ages show that during the first year of life, the average was 1,182 deaths for the ten years. For the next year, it was 451. From that period the average drop of 24 for the third year, and then to below 100 until the age period of eighty to ninety years is reached, when it mounts to 110.

Influenza—This disease killed 5,680 persons, with February and March carrying the highest averages. The highest average by ages was for the age period of from eighty to ninety years, when the average was 113 deaths a year.

Pneumonia—This disease killed 32,370 persons, with January, February and March having the highest averages. The highest average by age period was in the first year, when the average for the ten years was 744. The lowest was for the age period of from three to four years.

Measles—Measles killed 1,580 persons, with March and April having the highest average. Most of the victims of this disease were less than one year old. No averages are reported for the age period after fifty-five years.

Smallpox—This, which was formerly the most dreaded disease, killed only 455 persons during the ten years, or an average of 45 a year. The highest averages were for January and February.

Glenwood.

The election of the town passed away peaceful and happy. There was but one ticket and of course all the candidates were elected. Sam D. Turner was duly elected to succeed himself as trustee of the First ward. Van E. Lewark was elected to succeed himself as clerk and treasurer. Martin Wright was duly elected marshal. There was twenty-eight votes cast. Many voters stayed at home and did not appear to cast their votes. Some interest could have been stirred up, but no one was brave enough to begin as the emoluments are not sufficient.

WHY DO THEY DO IT?

"Why people should weep over the imaginary sorrows shown on the stage, when there is so much real sorrow in the world, I never could understand," says a well known writer.

And it is just as hard for us to see why people will suffer needlessly for months or years. Here is the case of M. Carter of South Akron, O., who says:

"For two years I was in a badly run-down condition, felt weak and miserable and lost considerable flesh. Then I heard that Vinol was a great thing to build up the body and create new strength.

"Now, after taking Vinol and getting so much good from it I have decided to write and tell you that it has made me strong and well again, and I have gained in weight, too."

If you are weak and sickly, need new strength and better blood, take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, for depend upon it, that is what you need and it will build you up. We guarantee it—Money back if you are not satisfied. F. B. Johnson & Co., Druggists, Rushville, Ind.

Just think, China a republic. That's going some.

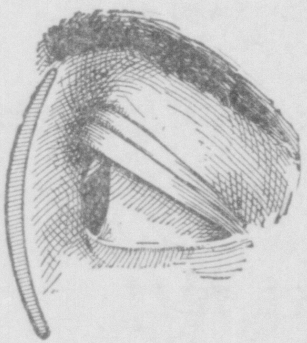

Since that astute Chinaman, Wu Ting Ping, has linked his fortune with the revolution, the days of the Manchu dynasty are surely limited. Wu Ting Ping ordinarily knows what he is about.

William Jennings Bryan, after he had learned the results of yesterday's elections, says in an interview that he is pleased with the "general" victory. Perhaps he is pleased by fact that Democratic candidates in New Jersey whose election was advocated by Woodrow Wilson, were defeated.

What are we to think of the Indianapolis authorities in trying their level best to withhold valuable evidence from the court in one of the most noted and dastardly criminal cases? Especially since Indianapolis itself suffered at the hands of these dynamiters, by having two explosions, and destruction of property. What is the matter with the court? Is it afraid?

Santa Clause is no doubt shaking his hoary head and laughing with glee, since the postmaster general has revealed some symptoms of being almost human. Mr. Hitchcock has come out of his shell long enough to make a ruling that Santa Claus mail this year will not be sent to the dead letter office and thrown away, as before. Instead postmasters are authorized to turn over these childish prayers to charitable organizations or benevolently inclined persons desiring them. Thus it may become possible to increase the Christmas cheer among those who feel the good will of man but seldom. There is yet hope for Mr. Hitchcock.

"Democrats Win in Kansas" is the glaring headline over the story concerning the election in that State yesterday. Surprising isn't it that the Democratic party should be victorious in a State such as Kansas, a hotbed of insurgency and free thinkers? Why did they not elect insurgents rather than Democrats? But it's nothing more than history repeating itself. Insurgency instead of accomplishing something gets no place. It serves only to disrupt the Republican party. Voters who pose as such should be honest enough with themselves and their fellowmen to admit that they are Democrats and that they they vote that ticket.

The life of Harvey Yeaman, the escaped lunatic who was captured here this week and returned to an asylum, is only one of the many examples in everyday life of the results of the use of liquor. He was born in a home surrounded with every luxury and he had all of the advantages that any boy could desire. He received his early education at home, his college degree and then his law degree. Now he is occupying a cell in an asylum for inebriates because he was too indulgent with his desire for drink. He wandered about the country from one coast to another, married a beautiful and accomplished woman in Denver only to ruin her life and then drank to such excess that his mental faculties were ruined.

The first fruits of the "Initiative" lately adopted in California, is a proposal for a public newspaper for the city of Los Angeles. It provides for a newspaper to be called the Los Angeles Municipal News, to be started and managed at public expense and sold to those who may call for it at the office of publication. The petition has been signed by the required five per cent. of the voters and there is no doubt that the proposal will be brought to a vote. It seems that sensible people would take the failure of free newspaper in Oklahoma recently as a criterion upon which they would base their future action. Such a newspaper as the above, hampered as it will be in the very beginning by the fact that it is based on the theory that all of the people must be pleased, which is an impossibility, will be a failure. But the establishment of such a law as the "Initiative" can bring about nothing more.

As was revealed in an open letter addressed to the Indianapolis Star recently concerning the true conditions at Richmond, which are not as portrayed in the Richmond newspapers, so also is the same opinion expressed in a communication from a shopman in Richmond which is reproduced in the Daily Republican today. The shopman indicates that Wayne county is still Republican and not a rankling mess of insurgency as the Richmond Palladium would have people outside of Wayne county believe.

The Palladium has been inveighing against bossism and "Big Business" so long and incessantly that one is led to believe that the editor of the paper is far from being sincere. Especially does this seem to be the case when it is considered that Mr. Leeds himself is attempting the biggest and most egotistical dictator that was ever conceived in modern politics. He sought to dictate the policy of the Wayne county central committee and that body refused to listen to his youthful and fanciful ideas. He retaliated by holding a little mass meeting of his own and entitled it the shopmen's mass meeting, which, he believed no doubt, would catch the popular fancy. Now it is found that he was the prime mover, having arranged to pay all the bills. Socialists, so the shopman from Richmond says, filled most of the offices of the Leeds organization which is perfectly fitting and proper that they should.

Not much progress can be made in reforming the world while some people on these pleasant autumn days will work when they ought to be out hunting.

By the expressive phrase the "Yellow Peril" many politicians of the Hobson type, both in Europe and here, have been sounding the alarm of the dangers of Oriental aggression.

The revolution in China seems likely to advance those great reforms that must take place before China can compete with the modern world. The imitative capacity that has transformed Japan from a semi-barbarous people into a world power will probably accomplish equal results in a single generation in China. Military arithmetic can easily figure that China's 400,000,000 people could produce an army that would outnumber all Europe and America. And a people who are willing to work for ten cents a day ought on paper to be able to beat out Europe and America on all production.

Although we look down at the Chinese as a nation of laundymen and other menial workers, their ancient philosophy has taught some truths that the western world has yet to learn. One of these truths is that fighting is the most expensive method of settling quarrels. The Chinese personally are peaceable. Their diplomacy will never walk around the globe with a chip on its shoulder.

As the cost of living in Japan has doubled in twenty years, its producers will not always have the low wages that make their economic

BE A BOOSTER

[By Homer Clark Bennett, M. D.]

Do you know there's lots o' people, Settin' round in every town, Growlin' like a broody chicken, Knockin' every good thing down? Don't you be that kind o' cattle, Cause they ain't no use on earth. You just be a booster rooster, Crow an' boost for all you're worth.

If your town needs boostin', boost 'er. Don't hold back an' wait to see If some other feller's willin'. Sail right in, this country's free; No one's got a mortgage on it. It's just yours as much as his, If your town is shy on boosters, You get in the boostin' biz.

If things don't just seem to suit you An' the world seems kinder wrong, What's the matter with a boostin'? Just to help the thing along; 'Cause if things should stop a goin', We'd be in a sorry plight. You just keep that horn a blowin', Boost 'er up with all your might.

If you see some feller tryin' For to make some project go, You can boost it up a trifle, That's your cue to let him know That you're not a goin' to knock it. Just because it ain't your "shout," But you're goin' to boost a little, 'Cause he's got "the best thing out."

If you know some feller's failin', Just forget 'em 'cause you know That same feller's got some good points, Them's the ones you want to show; "Cast your loaves out on the waters, They'll come back," 's a sayin' true, Maybe they will come back, "but-tered," When some feller boosts for you.

Monday, Nov. 6, being the forty-third birthday of Roy Murphy, his wife and daughter, Miss Beulah planned a surprise for him, the previous Sunday, at their home in Orange. Each family came with well filled baskets and at noon a most bountiful dinner was served to the twenty-eight guests present, who were, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Williams, Mrs. Emily McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Stamm and two children of New Salem, Mr. and Mrs. Henry McKee of Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Titsworth and two daughters, Mrs. Wm. In the afternoon the young people assisted by a few of the older ones rendered some very nice music, which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Emily McKee, the oldest one present, having just passed her eighty-seventh birthday, seemed to enjoy the day as well as the youngest. Late in the evening the guests returned to their homes except Mrs. Emily McKee and Mr. and Mrs. Henry McKee, who remained for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Murphy.

OBJECTING TO HOBBLE RULING

Indiana Horsemen Stand As Unit in Opposing Elimination of Them in Racing Stock.

HITS INDIANA VERY HARD

Secretaries of racing associations in the state are in conference with each other as to what action shall be taken to prevent the enforcement of the American Trotting Association's ruling to bar the hobbles from all horses after next year.

It will be recalled that two years ago the American Trotting association made a ruling intended to eliminate the unsightly hobbles from harness horses, but in order to escape working a hardship on the men who handle these animals, it was provided that in 1909 the rule should take effect on two-year-olds only, with a ban on three-year-olds in 1910, four-year-olds in 1911, and against all horses thereafter.

As the time draws near for the final effect of the ultimatum and as there are hundreds of four-year-old horses racing, many secretaries are looking upon the ruling with disfavor as they fear the fields in all pacing races will be so materially lessened that their revenues from entrance fees will be decreased to such an extent that speed programs will prove unprofitable. These secretaries are being encouraged by the men who depend on their work with hobble horses for a living. Indiana is famous for its hobble pacers and many of the pacing champions have been bred within the borders of the state.

AMUSEMENTS

The Princess offers as the first picture tonight a feature film entitled "Thro Fire and Smoke." The picture is another of the Selig famous fire films and is a thrilling and realistic production. A number of these pictures have been seen in this city and all have pleased. This one is said to be even better than the others. The other picture is a stirring drama, "The Surgeon's Temptation."

The Portola will have for tonight's program two dramas, said to be above the ordinary. "The Thumb Prints" is a novel picture, featuring the part of the thumb prints. The other is a clever Indian picture, "The Medicine Woman." Thursday and Friday nights a big feature program will be given. Three reels of pictures and special music will be given each night.

Here's where the Palace gives its patrons a laugh—a double header and they strike you hard in the Vitagraph film "The Wrong Patient" and "Queer Folks," a romance of the side show, where the living skeleton falls in love with the fat woman, the bearded lady with the skeleton, the fat woman with Sampson the strong man, and the strong man falls in love with the bearded lady. This state of affairs affords a great deal of amusement for the rest of the freaks. But at last they challenge each other to duels and it ends happily. The strong man gets the bearded lady, whisks and all. The other film is a Pathe Indian story in which three thieves in the Western Bad Lands made up as Indians and rob the government store-houses, killing the guards. The Indian tribe is suspected and the officer in command of the army post tells them that unless the culprits are surrendered to them, they will stop their rations. This is an awful threat. To save the tribe from death, three innocent Indians volunteer to give themselves up "For the Sake of the Tribe," and while they are digging their graves the real robbers quarrel and one tells on the other. Of course, all ends happily. The Thomas sister will play again tonight. J. W. Wilson will play a flute solo tomorrow night entitled "Cavaleria Rusticana."

Louise Dresser makes her debut as a star next Friday night at English's in Indianapolis, when she appears in "A Lovely Liar," a musical comedy that will be performed here for the first time on any stage. The piece is by Junie McCree and is a musical modification of "Mrs. Black is Back." The music is by Hans S. Linne, a Viennese composer.

Will H. Philbrick is featured in Miss Dresser's support. Others in the cast are Anna Laughlin, Richie Ling, Will H. Kennedy, Mortimer Weldon, Sallie Stembler, Emile Lea and a Lederer "talking chorus." Frazer and Lederer, the producers, will send their entire staff from New York to English's for the premiere. The author Junie McCree, will be one of the cast on Friday night, while the composer, Hans S. Linne, will direct an augmented orchestra. H. H. Frazer and George W. Lederer will direct the stage. Miss Dresser is a pronounced blond of the junoesque type with honey-colored hair and pearl white skin. Accordingly blond is to be the color scheme of the production and of the costumes, which, it is announced, are both on a scale of unusual richness. The engagement at English's is for Friday and Saturday nights and Saturday matinee.

CHAPTER III.

At Sixty Mile they restocked provisions, added a few pounds of letters to their load, and held steadily on. From Forty Mile they had unbroken trail, and they could look forward only to unbroken trail clear to Dyea. Daylight stood it magnificently, but the killing pace was beginning to tell on Kama. His pride kept his mouth shut, but the result of the chilling of his lungs in the cold snap could not be concealed. They traveled till ten o'clock the night they reached Selkirk, and at six next morning they plunged ahead into the next stretch of wilderness of nearly five hundred miles that lay between Selkirk and Dyea. There was no let-up in his pace. Twelve hours a day, six in the twilight and six in the dark, they toiled on the trail. Three hours were consumed in cooking, repairing harnesses, and making and breaking camp, and the remaining nine hours dogs and men slept as if dead.

The time came when Kama was unable to go in the lead and break trail, and it was proof that he was far gone when he permitted Daylight to toll all day at the heavy snowshoe work. Lake by lake they crossed the string of lakes from Marsh to Linderman, and began the ascent of Chilcoot. By all rights Daylight should have camped below the last pitch of the pass at the dim end of day; but he kept on and over and down to Sheep Camp, while behind him raged a snow storm that would have delayed him twenty-four hours. This last excessive strain broke Kama completely. In the morning he could not travel. At five, when called, he sat up after a struggle, groaned, and sank back again. Daylight did the camp work of both, harnessed the dogs, and, when ready for the start, rolled the helpless Indian in all three sleeping robes and lashed him on top of the sled. The going was good; they were on their last lap; and he raced the dogs down through Dyea canyon and along the hard-packed trail that led to Dyea post. And running still, Kama groaning on top the load, and Daylight leaping at the gee-pole to avoid going under the runners of the flying sled, they arrived at Dyea by the sea. True to his promise, Daylight did not stop. An hour's time saw the sled loaded with the ingoing mail and grub, fresh dogs harnessed and a fresh Indian engaged. Kama never spoke from the time of his arrival till the moment Daylight, ready to depart, stood beside him to say good-by. They shook hands.

"You kill um dat damn Indian," Kama said. "Savvee, Daylight? You kill um."

"He'll sure last as far as Pelly," Daylight grinned.

Kama shook his head doubtfully, and rolled over on his side, turning his back in token of farewell.

A crowd filled the Tivoli—the old crowd that had seen Daylight depart two months before; for this was the night of the sixtieth day, and opinion was divided as ever as to whether or not he would compass the achievement. At ten o'clock bets were still being made, though the odds rose, bet by bet, against his success. Down in her heart the Virgin believed he had laied, yet she made a bet or twenty ounces with Charley Bates, against forty ounces, that Daylight would arrive before midnight.

The Time Came When Kama Was Unable to Go in the Lead.

She it was who heard the first yelps of the dogs.

"Listen!" she cried. "It's Daylight!"

There was a general stampede for the door; but when the double storm doors were thrown wide open, the crowd fell back. They heard the eager whining of dogs, the snap of a dog-whip and the voice of Daylight crying encouragement as the weary animals capped all they had done by dragging the sled in over the wooden floor. They came in with a rush, and with them rushed in the frost, a visible vapor of smoking white, through which their heads and backs showed, as they strained in the harness, till they had all the seeming of swimming in a river. Behind them, at the geepole, came Daylight, hidden to the knees by the swirling frost through which he appeared to wade. He was the same old Daylight, withal lean and tired-looking, and his black eyes were sparkling and flashing brighter than ever. His parka of cotton drill hooded him like a monk, and fell in straight lines to his knees. Grimed and scorched by camp-smoke and fire, the garment in itself told the story of his trip. A two-months' beard covered his face; and the beard, in turn, was matted with the ice of his breathing through the long seventy-mile run.

He experienced a thrill of surprise as the roar of welcome went up and as every familiar detail of the Tivoli greeted his vision—the long bar and the array of bottles, the gambling games, the big stove, the weigher at the gold-scales, the musicians, the men and women, the Virgin, Celia, and Nellie, Dan MacDonald, Bettles, Billy Rawlins, Olaf Henderson, Doc Watson—all of them. It was just as he had left it, and in all seeming it might well be the very day he had left. The sixty days of incessant travel through the white wilderness suddenly telescoped, and had no existence in time. They were a moment, an incident. He had plunged out and into them through the wall of silence, and back through the wall of silence he had plunged, apparently the next instant, and into the roar and turmoil of the Tivoli.

He drew a deep breath and cried: "The winner pays, and I'm the winner, ain't I? Surge up, you-all Male-mutes and Slashes, and name your poison! There's your Dyea mail, straight from Salt Water, and no horn-swooglin about it! Cast the lashings adrift, you-all, and wade into it!"

A dozen pairs of hands were at the sled-lashings, when the young Le Barge Indian, bending at the same task, suddenly and limply straightened up. In his eyes was a great surprise. He stared about him wildly, for the thing he was undergoing was new to him. He was profoundly struck by an unguessed limitation. He shook as with a palsy, and he gave at the knees, slowly sinking down to fall suddenly across the sled and to know the smashing blow of darkness across his consciousness.

"Exhaustion," said Daylight. "Take him off and put him to bed, some of you-all. He's sure a good Indian."

A few minutes later, Daylight was whirling around the dance-floor, waltzing with the Virgin. And small wonder it was that the Virgin yielded herself to his arms, as they danced dance after dance, and sick at heart at the knowledge that he found nothing in her more than a good friend and an excellent dancer. Small consolation it was to know that he never loved any woman. She was sick with love of him, and he danced with her as he would dance with any woman, as he would dance with a man who was a good dancer and upon whose arm was tied a handkerchief to conventionalize him into a woman.

At one in the morning he saw Elijah Davis herding Henry Finn and Joe Hines, the lumber-jack, toward the door. Daylight interfered.

"Where are you-all going?" he demanded, attempting to draw them to the bar.

"Bed," Elijah Davis answered.

"Got to," Joe Hines added apologetically. "We're mushing out in the mornin'."

Daylight still detained them.

"Where to? What's the excitement?"

"No excitement," Elijah explained.

"We're just a-goin' to play your hunch, an' tackle the Upper Country. Don't you want to come along?"

"I sure do," Daylight affirmed. But the question had been put in fun, and Elijah ignored the acceptance.

"We're tacklin' the Stewart," he went on. "Al Mayo told me he seen some likely lookin' bars first time he come down the Stewart, and we're goin' to sample 'em while the river's froze. You listen, Daylight, an' mark my words, the time's comin' when winter diggin's 'll be all the go. There'll be men in them days that'll laugh at our summer scratchin' an' ground-wallerin'!"

Elijah laughed, gathered his two partners up, and was making a second attempt to reach the door.

"Hold on," Daylight called. "I sure mean it."

The three men turned back suddenly upon him, in their faces surprise, delight, and incredulity.

"G'wan, you're foolin'," said Finn, the other lumber-jack, a quiet, steady, Wisconsin man.

"There's my dawgs and sled," Daylight answered. "That'll make two teams and halve the loads; though we-all 'll have to travel easy for a spell, for them dawgs is sure tired."

The three men were overjoyed, but still a trifle incredulous.

"Now look here," Joe Hines blurted out, "none of your foolin', Daylight. We mean business. Will you come?" Daylight extended his hand and shook.

CHAPTER IV.

This time the trail was easier. It was better packed, and they were not carrying mail against time. At Forty Mile they laid over two days for the sake of the dogs, and at Sixty Mile Daylight's team was left with the trader. Unlike Daylight, after the terrible run from Selkirk to Circle City, they had been unable to recuperate on the back trail. So the four men pulled on from Sixty Mile with a fresh team of dogs on Daylight's sled. The following night they camped in the cluster of islands at the mouth of the Stewart. Daylight talked town sites, and, though the others laughed at him, he staked the whole maze of high, wooded island.

"Just supposing the big strike does come on the Stewart," he argued. "Mebbe you-all 'll be in on it, and then again mebbe you-all won't. But I sure will. You-all 'd better reconsider and go in with me on it."

But they were stubborn.

"You're as bad as Harper and Joe Ladue," said Joe Hines. "They're always at that game. You know that flat flat just below the Klondike and under Moosehide Mountain? Well, the recorder at Forty Mile was tellin' me they staked that not a month ago—The Harper & Ladue Town Site. Ha! Ha! Ha!"

Elijah and Finn joined in his laughter; but Daylight was gravely in earnest.

"There she is!" he cried. "The hunch is working! It's in the air, I tell you-all! What'd they-all stake the big flat for if they-all didn't get the hunch? Wish I'd staked it."

The regret in his voice was provocative of a second burst of laughter.

"Laugh, dang you, laugh! Why your eyes ain't open yet. You-all are a bunch of little mewling kittens. I tell you-all if that strikes come on Klondike, Harper and Ladue will be millionaires. And if it comes on Stewart, you-all watch the Elam Harnish town site boom. In them days, when you-all come around makin' poor mouths . . ." He heaved a sigh of resignation. "Well, I suppose I'll have to give you-all a grub-stake or soup, or something or other."

In the meantime there was naught to show for it but hunch. But it was coming. As he would stake his last ounce on a good poker hand, so he staked his life and effort on the hunch that the future held in store a big strike on the Upper River. So he and his three companions, with dogs, and sleds, and snowshoes, toiled up the frozen breast of the Stewart, toiled on and on through the white wilderness where the unending stillness was never broken by the voices of men, the stroke of an ax, or the distant crack of a rifle. Gold they found on the bars, but not in paying quantities, and in the following May they returned to Sixty Mile.

Ten days later, Harper and Joe Ladue arrived at Sixty Mile, and Daylight, strong to obey the hunch that had come to him, traded a third interest in his Stewart town site for a third interest in theirs on the Klondike. They had faith in the Upper Country, and Harper left down-stream, with a raft-load of supplies, to start a small post at the mouth of the Klondike.

"Why don't you tackle Indian River, Daylight?" Harper advised, at parting. "There's whole slathers of creeks and draws drainin' in up there, and somewhere gold just cryin' to be found. That's my hunch. There's a big strike coming, and Indian River ain't going to be a million miles away."

"And the place is swarming with moose," Joe Ladue added. "Bob Henderson's up there somewhere, been there three years now, swearing something big is going to happen, livin' off'n straight moose and prospecting around like a crazy man."

Daylight decided to go Indian River a flutter, as he expressed it; and lingered a few days longer arranging his meager outfit. He planned to go in light, carrying a pack of seventy-five pounds and making his five dogs pack as well, Indian fashion, loading them with thirty pounds each. Depending on the report of Ladue, he intended to follow Bob Henderson's example and live practically on straight meat. When Jack Kearns' scow, laden with the sawmill from Lake Linderman, tied up at Sixty Mile, Daylight bundled his outfit and dogs on board, turned his town-site application over to Elijah to be filed, and the same day was landed at the mouth of Indian River. He continued down Hunker to the Klondike, and on to the summer fishing camp of the Indians on the Yukon.

Here for a day he camped with Carmack, a squaw-man, and his Indian brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, bought a boat, and, with his dogs on board, drifted down the Yukon to Forty Mile. Then it was that Carmack, his brother-in-law, Skookum Jim, and Cultus Charlie, another Indian, arrived in a canoe at Forty Mile, went straight to the gold commissioner, and recorded three claims and a discovery claim on Bonanza Creek. After that, in the Sourdough Saloon, that night, they exhibited coarse gold to the skeptical crowd. Daylight, too, was skeptical, and this despite his faith in the Upper Country. Had he not, only a few days before, seen Carmack loafing with his Indians and with never a thought of prospecting? But at eleven that night, sitting on the edge of his bunk and unlacing his moccasins, a thought came to him. He put on his coat and hat and went back to the Sourdough. Carmack was still there, flashing his coarse gold in the eyes of an unbelieving generation. Daylight ranged alongside of him and emptied Carmack's sack into a blower. This he studied for a long time. Then, from his own sack, into another blower, he emptied several ounces of Circle City and Forty Mile gold. Again, for a long time, he studied and compared. Finally, he pocketed his own gold, returned Carmack's, and held up his hand for silence.

"Boys, I want to tell you-all something," he said. "She's sure come—the up-river strike. And I tell you-all, clear and forcible, this is it. There ain't never been gold like that in a blower in this country before. It's new gold. It's got more silver in it."

"Who-all's Got Faith to Come Along With Me?"

You-all can see it by the color. Carmack's sure made a strike. Who-all's got faith to come along with me?" (To be continued.)

Looting the Family Purse

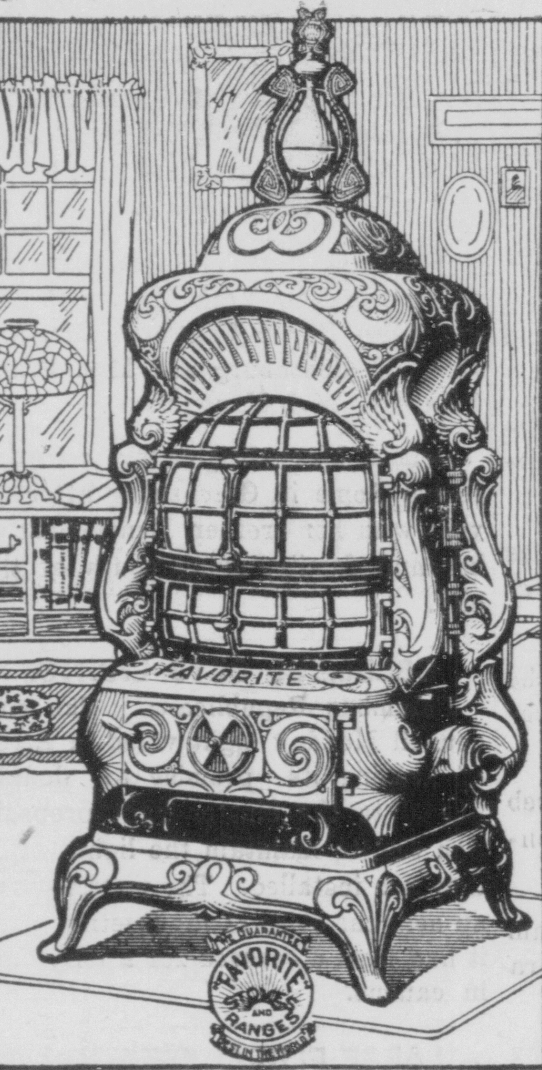

When you once pay the bill for a table or bed, the matter is closed as far as expense is concerned.

But with a stove, the first cost is only a beginning—a trifling amount when you consider the cost of the fuel that stove will consume during its lifetime.

There are a lot of heating stoves that loot the family purse—burn twice as much fuel as a FAVORITE BASE BURNER would require to do the same amount of work.

The Favorite saves one-half on coal bills and throws out more heat. There is no other Base Burner like it, for the features that make it such a wonderful and economical heater are patented.

Don't put up with the wastefulness and extravagance of a cheap stove. Buy a FAVORITE BASE BURNER. It will save you money every day it is in use, and bring such comfort and satisfaction, too.

A New Back for an Old One, How it Can Be Done in Rushville.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidney, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Rushville residents would do well to profit by the following example.

Mrs. Henry Fisher, 307 W. Hendricks street, Shelbyville, Ind., says: "I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills about three years ago. At that time I was suffering from kidney trouble and backache and I felt miserable in every way. I had often heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and I finally procured a supply. The contents of two or three boxes gave me relief and I had no further trouble until recently when my back began to ache. I at once used Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me as promptly as before. I have previously endorsed this remedy through the local papers and at this time I gladly confirm all I have said in its praise."

THE CORONER MAKES CHARGE OF MURDER

Grand Jury Investigates Death of Mrs. Connors.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 8.—Deputy Coroner William Stempert has returned a verdict charging Albert Brooks with being the murderer of Mrs. Mary Connors, who was shot and killed under mysterious circumstances at her home in this city last Thursday morning.

The verdict of Acting Coroner Stempert is based upon the sworn statement of seven-year-old William Brooks, a nephew of Albert Brooks, and a grandson of Mrs. Connors, who said Brooks fired the shot that killed Mrs. Connors after they had quarreled over a board bill owed Mrs. Connors by Brooks. The boy said he saw Brooks load the pistol the night before the killing. The grand jury is now investigating.

NO THOUGHT OF A COMPROMISE

Long Pending Slander Suit Is Now In Court.

A COMMUNITY IS AGITATED

Action Based Upon Remarks Alleged to Have Been Made During Progress of a Religious "Revival" Last Winter Has Called For the Presence of More Than a Hundred Citizens of a Wayne County Township in Court.

Richmond, Ind., Nov. 8.—In the Wayne circuit court today began the suit of Dr. Arthur Jones of Whitewater against M. B. Wallingford, a Franklin township citizen, in which Jones demands $5,000 for slander. More than one hundred citizens of Franklin township have been summoned as witnesses. Wallingford, during the progress of a revival meeting in one of the Whitewater churches last winter, is alleged to have made remarks regarding Dr. Jones which reflected seriously on his morality. The suit has been pending several months and it was reported frequently that attempts had been made to effect a compromise. Both sides, however, deny this and assert that they are ready for the hearing.

HAD A BIG TIME

Thousands Participate in the Battle Ground Centennial Observance.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 8.—More than 20,000 people came to Lafayette to attend the centennial celebration of the battle of Tippecanoe, and the affair was a great success. With two governors and several other notable statesmen there was no limit to the flow of oratory. Over 4,000 school children took part in the morning program on the battle field. Addresses were made by Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the D. A. R.; Charles A. Greathouse, superintendent of public instruction of Indiana; Congressman E. D. Crumpacker and Charles W. Fairbanks. Governor Marshall spoke in the afternoon. He was followed by Addison C. Harris of Indianapolis and Governor Chase S. Osborne of Michigan.

The crowning feature of the celebration was the reproduction of the battle of Tippecanoe by Purdue cadets and Red Men. The weather was ideal for the celebration, and the crowd was the largest Lafayette was called on to entertain in years.

Charles W. Fairbanks, Charles W. Jewett of New Albany and Mrs. M. T. Scott made addresses at the Victoria theater here last night.

OUT OF BUSINESS

The Hadley Home For Children Closed by Governor's Order.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—Governor Marshall has ordered the Hadley home for children closed and county authorities have been instructed to take the children from their counties away at once. The home was supported by charity, and the governor's action was caused by the neglect of the children, who were poorly clad and clothed, while the officers were receiving large salaries. The state board of charities investigated the institution and action was taken on its report.

Deadly Row in Saloon.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—In a fight which was the outgrowth of union labor troubles, Bert Dudley was shot and probably fatally injured by Richard Nolan, who interfered with Dudley choking his brother, Shad Dudley. The fight occurred at a saloon. The men are glassblowers. The bullet went through Dudley's chest.

Tuesday's Election Insures Him a Seat in the Senate.

FEDERAL COURT HAS M'NAMARA EVIDENCE

Judge Anderson Doesn't Wait On Supreme Court.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 8.—Yesterday important developments in the McNamara case crowded thick and fast. The twelfth juror was seated, the box filled, and peremptory challenges began. The state exercised two and rested. The defense exhausted five and reserved the right to spend more today. Five men remained in the box when court adjourned last evening.

In Indianapolis Judge Anderson of the federal court ordered federal marshals to seize the books, papers and physical evidence which a county judge had ordered a county sheriff to hold until the state supreme court had decided on an appeal taken by counsel of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers association. In two hours the federal court had the necessary evidence. When Joseph Ford, assistant district attorney here, heard the news he said: "Good, I'm glad of it."

In the near future, probably next week, the defense will file another petition for the removal of the present trial from Judge Bordwell's court.

DIED TOGETHER

Kentucky Reports First Suicide Pact Known Among Negroes.

Fulton, Ky., Nov. 8.—Probably the first known suicide pact among the negro race in the United States was carried out in Fulton, when Walter Sanders, a mail clerk, shot and killed Ida Gardner, wife of West Gardner, a railroad employee, and then turned the weapon upon himself. Sanders was in love with his victim. The tragedy took place at the Gardner home. The woman seated herself in a rocking chair for the execution. Sanders sat in front of her and lay at her feet after firing the second fatal shot.

The Chester Makes a Call.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The scout cruiser Chester spent several hours at Tripoli and later sailed for Marseilles. Although officers of the state department will not admit it, it is thought here that the trip of the Chester to Tripoli was primarily for the purpose of obtaining a report from Consul Wood upon the alleged atrocities committed by the Italian troops in the present war with the Turks.

Explosion in Open Field.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 8.—Roy Burger, a farmer of Porter county, struck a match to light his pipe while husking corn, and was seriously injured as a result of a mysterious explosion. Investigation showed he had been standing over buried oil pipelines, and it is believed a leak had resulted in the generation of gases, which were ignited.

Four Run Over by Engine.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 8.—Dan Jones, who was run over in the local Baltimore & Ohio railroad yards by an engine, died at St. Joseph's hospital. W. O. Day, Clarence Williamson and Russell Blaney, who were injured at the same time, may recover. All were riding the pilot, which broke, throwing them under the engine.

Coroner Has Further Suspicions.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Belief that Mrs. Louise Vermilya, held for one murder and suspected of having knowledge of nine others in a poison mystery, fed poison to her own son, Frank Brinkamp, caused Coroner Hoffman to go to Waldheim cemetery and dig up the body of Brinkamp.

Anxious to Secure New Hospital.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 8.—Sixteen leading citizens of Danville pleaded with Governor Deneen and the state board of administration to build the proposed $1,500,000 state asylum for the insane at Danville. Senator Bailey was spokesman for the delegation.

First Year Students—Purdue School of Agriculture

The freshman class in agriculture at Purdue this year is the largest in the history of the school. One hundred and thirty-three young men enrolled during September for the regular four-year course. This is a 20 per cent. increase over the class last year.

The records show that a number of these men have taken one or more years academic work in some of the secondary schools of the state. This is a significant fact, because it shows that thinking young men in Indiana are beginning to realize the value of an agricultural course when compared with the other college courses. They see the opportunities that the farm offers and they have come to Purdue to learn the how and the why in agriculture.

The class as a whole is a fine lot of fellows who with four years' training will represent a strong factor in Indiana agriculture.

TAKES A STAND AGAINST GRAY

Hancock Democrat Remarks Sneeringly Congressman is Compiling Garden Seed Mailing List.

IS OPEN AND ABOVE BOARD

The Hancock County Democrat has taken a stand against Representative Finly Gray of the Sixth district, says the Indianapolis Star. There has been some talk recently of a movement against Gray in the west end of the Sixth. This movement has been going forward quietly. It has not sought publicity. But the Hancock County Democrat is not inclined to beat about the bush in the matter. In a recent issue the Democrat said, editorially:

"Hon Finly Gray, congressman from this district, was in the city on Monday last, circulating among the people. He was gathering up all the directories he could secure to get the names of persons to whom he might send garden seeds to secure the Democratic votes necessary to return this gentleman to congress to represent this district."

Representative Gray is traveling pretty steadily these days up and down and around the Sixth. The local press keeps tab on his movements now and again. All the time Mr. Gray is looking up pension applicants and telling them what he believes ought to be done to help the veterans of the Civil war. Incidentally, as indicated by the Hancock Democrat, Mr. Gray possibly is gathering names for his garden seed mailing list.

DOESN'T APPLY TO TOWNS UNDER 1500

Attorney General Honan Gives Opinion Regarding Recent Act of Legislature Regarding Registration.

SPECIAL SECTION CONTROLS

According to an unofficial opinion given to a number of towns of the state by Thomas M. Honan, attorney-general, the act of the recent general assembly requiring the registration of voters for general election purposes does not apply to incorpo-ated towns or to cities of less than 1,500 population, hence the election this month to fill vacancies for town boards of trustees, and in clerk's treasurers' and marshals' offices will not be affected by the act.

Town officials were led to believe by the first section of the act, which provides that it shall apply to all general elections, that the coming elections would be affected, but the attorney general held that the situation as to towns was controlled by a special section (Section 25), which provides that it shall apply to cities of 1500 or more population only. Because of this special section and because the act does not make special provisions for towns, the attorney general held it was not intended to apply to towns.

The question had come up in Wells county owing to the elections in the small towns.
